National Quality Assurance Standards, a framework developed by the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare to improve healthcare quality in public health facilities. It assesses facilities across areas like patient rights, clinical care, and infection control to ensure safe and patient-centric services, with the goal of improving patient outcomes and public trust. NQAS is used for self-assessment and certification and has been extended to a wide range of public health facilities, from district hospitals to sub-centre.

In this regard, a team of following Nodal officers is being made to assess the currently functional 19 out of 21 departmental checklists of Swami Dayanand Hospital.

All the Departmental Nodal officers are required to study the checklist and get the needful done in consultation with their Departmental HOD and Nodal officer NQAS. They are also required to coordinate with other service divisions of the Hospital.

This issues with the approval of Medical Superintendent SDNH.
